DR. CATHERINE DEANGELIS

PROFESSOR AT THE JOHNS HOPKINS SCHOOL OF MEDICINE AND SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH, EDITOR-IN-CHIEF EMERITA OF THE JOURNAL OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

COMMENTS BY: DR. HOWARD FEDEROFF

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT FOR HEALTH SCIENCES AND EXECUTIVE DEAN OF THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE AT GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY

Dr. DeAngelis is a Professor at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine and School of Public Health. From 2000 until 2011, she was the Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of the American Medical Association. Before being the first woman to hold the Editor's position, she was a Professor and the Vice Dean of Faculty at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, where she was the twelfth woman in Hopkins' history to achieve the rank of full professor. Prior to her work at Johns Hopkins, Dr. DeAngelis was a faculty member at the Columbia College of Physicians, working on improving the health care systems in Harlem and upper Manhattan using nurse-practitioner teams, and a faculty member at the University of Wisconsin, where she organized a system for children's health care. Dr. DeAngelis obtained her MD at the University of Pittsburgh and completed her residency in pediatrics at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, during which time she worked in a free clinic in Baltimore. She then obtained a Masters of Public Health at Harvard University, during which time she worked in a comprehensive community clinic. Prior to medical school, Dr. DeAngelis was a nurse at the Columbia University Medical Center.

Dr. Federoff is the Executive Vice President for Health Sciences and Executive Dean of the School of Medicine at Georgetown University. Prior to his current position, Dr. Federoff held appointments as Senior Associate Dean for Basic Research; Professor of Neurology, Medicine Microbiology and Immunology; and Professor of Oncology and Genetics at the University of Rochester School of Medicine and as Founding Director of the Center for Aging and Development Biology at the Aab Institution of Biomedical Sciences at Rochester. He also served as Director of the University of Rochester's Interdepartmental Neuroscience Program and as Founding Chief of the Division of Molecular Medicine and Gene Therapy. In 2006, Dr. Federoff was named Chair of the NIH Recombinant DNA Advisory Committee. Before joining the Rochester community, he was Associate Professor of Medicine and Neuroscience at Albert Einstein College of Medicine, from which he received MS, PhD, and MD degrees. He did his internship, residency, and clinical and research fellowships at Massachusetts General Hospital/Harvard Medical School.
