

Public Health Law: Perspectives from Brazil

Tuesday, April 30, 2013
3:30 – 4:30 PM

Georgetown University Law Center
E.B. Williams Library, Room 358
111 G Street, NW · Washington, DC 20001

Moderated by Tanya Baytor, LL.M Program Director, O'Neill Institute

Angela Kung
Attorney, Pinheiro Neto

Ms. Kung is a Brazilian attorney, who practices in the area of life sciences and intellectual property, and partner of Pinheiro Neto Advogados, where she has worked since 1989, mostly representing clients from the health industry doing business in Brazil.

Ms. Kung graduated at the State University of Sao Paulo, Law School, Brazil, in 1993. From 1993 to 1994, Ms. Kung engaged in graduate courses in Civil Procedure law at Catholic University of Sao Paulo.

In 1999, Ms. Kung also earned an LL.M. degree in Common Law Studies, at Georgetown University. In 2010, she became specialist in Sanitary Law after conclusion of the post-graduation course at the University of São Paulo, Public Health School, with a paper on post clinical trial obligations.

She also practiced with Hogan & Lovells, in Washington D.C. and she worked for a major American company, in McLean, Virginia.

In the academic area, she is the professor for Regulation of the Pharmaceutical Industry at FGV/SINDUSFARMA and Business School of São Paulo; professor of Clinical trial regulation and sanitary law at SBMF, IDISA/UNICAMP. Faculdade de Medicina da Santa Casa de Misericórdia de Sao Paulo.