

ARE HEALTH AND CARE WORKERS PROTECTED?

Launch of the first ever global study on health and care worker rights and protections, tracking laws in over 180 countries

Jillian Roque, Chief of Staff and Head of Organizing and Advocacy, Public Services Labor Independent Confederation

Jillian Roque has nearly two decades of experience in union organizing, policy advocacy and development work. She has led various development projects, research and campaigns related to workers' rights, public health and education, migration, social protection, trade justice and public governance. She has served as resource speaker and labor representative in various international and intergovernmental conferences and processes such as the UN High Level Dialogue on Migration and Development, Global Compact for Migration and the Global Forum on Migration and Development. She was one of the experts who contributed to the development of the ILO Fair Recruitment Principles and Operational Guidelines at the ILO Tripartite Meeting of Experts. She has served as consultant for the ILO, Public Services International and the International Trade Union Confederation. She sits in various multisectoral bodies developing policies on human resources for health in the Philippines such as the National Tripartite Executive Committee, Human Resources for Health Network and the Philippine Migrant Health Network. Jillian is currently Chief of Staff and Head of Organizing and Advocacy at the Public Services Labor Independent Confederation (PSLINK), a national confederation of government workers and their unions and associations representing more than 114,000 employees from all over the country.
